TT - Tim's Techniques

How To Reach More In Less Time

Short About Me

I started out with doing a lot of yoga, daily, about 15 years ago. Up to 6 years ago I still wasn't pain free. I hold a lot of "getting older ailments" in my left leg, lower back pain and stuff like that. Then I met Wim Hof and I added breathing techniques and cold training to my daily routine. 15 years of experience, self exploration and doing as little as possible with as much effect as possible has led to TT, Tim's Techniques. I use at this moment 6 different pillars in the most relaxed and effective way. These are:

- 1 - Light daily exercise - low intensity work out.
- 2 - Breathing techniques - I am now an internationally active breathing and WHM instructor.
- 3 - Cold training - yep ending your shower cold and even ice baths.
- 4 - Nutrition - I have been re-educated by the Japanese, I have been in Japan 15 times.
- 5 - Mindset training - it is a continuous process to get to know yourself and your values better. And gain the ability to control your emotions. My nature is to be very emotional.
- 6 - Meditation - before my current path I was a meditation teacher. I am a lot further now.

1 - Light daily exercise - low intensity work out.

Please build a morning ritual with 1) light exercise, 2) breathing exercise and 3) end your shower cold.

This is the arm twist, great to start out.

3 - Cold training

Light cold training every day.

I end my shower cold for 1-5 minutes depending on how I feel and how much energy I need for that day.

Good luck!

4 - Nutrition

I am very inspired by the Japanese when it comes to nutrition. Also the 5 Blue Zones, very similar info as the Japanese, are a great inspiration.

Here is a video that explains more about my philosophy.

5 - Mindset Training Through the Power of Paradox

Soon I will publish my book called “the Power of Paradox - No-BS Mindset Training”.

I will publish videos about this subject.

In this playlist.

This technique, mindset training, makes life one big meditative experience.

6 - Meditation

The easiest way to meditate is to slow down your breathing. And more, and more, and more..

Here is however a playlist with 15 different meditations.

Meditation is easy.

Just keep on breathing slowly. Slow breathing removes stress. Less stress is more happy. The key to happiness in two words is:

Breathe slowly.
